

STANDING ORDER NO. HRD/38/2022

SUBSIDIARY TRAINING UNITS IN DISTRICTS/UNITS

1. INTRODUCTION:

With rapid changes taking place in the society, the police is expected to adequately train its personnel to meet the growing challenges in day-to-day policing as also to constantly rise to the expectations of the citizens it is purported to serve. For this purpose, continuous training of police personnel on the changes introduced in law, police procedure, use of technology in policing and investigation etc. is absolutely essential. Police training should help the policemen in adapting quickly to the accelerated pace of social changes and to rising demands of the society.

Even though the Delhi Police Academy endeavours to impart in-service refresher courses to Delhi Police personnel, besides the basic and promotional training and a Specialised Training Centre (STC) has also been set up at Rajinder Nagar, it has been felt that the training needs of entire police force cannot be met by Delhi Police Academy alone. Therefore, Subsidiary Training Units (STUs) in each District, Security, Traffic, Special Branch, Special Cell, Crime Branch, EOW, Railway & Metro Police, IGIA Police, CAW Cell (SPUWAC), R.P. Bhawan, and DAP Battalions have been setup to augment the training capacity of Delhi Police.

2. OBJECTIVES OF SUBSIDIARY TRAINING UNITS:

Subsidiary Training Units shall serve the following objectives:-

- (i) Augment the training capacity of Delhi Police so that every police person is able to undergo induction, refresher and investigation courses.
- (ii) Keep abreast of the new laws & statutes and the ever-growing technology and job-related skills.
- (iii) Provide specific training to its personnel as per training needs analysis of each district/unit.

- (iv) To upgrade and improve the investigative skills of the IOs i.e. Head Constables, ASIs and SIs.
- (v) Ensure that each and every police personnel undergo such training.

3. DURATION AND TRAINING MODULES OF COURSES:

These in-house training courses shall be of three types:-

- i. Induction Course
- ii. Refresher Course
- iii. Basic Investigation Course

i. INDUCTION COURSE:

Whenever a police personnel is posted in a unit for the first time or after a long time, he has to undergo an Induction course of a specific duration and the course content to be decided by the hierarchy of the concerned unit. This will make the newly inducted police official familiar with job requirements of that specialised unit. This is particularly required in units like Security, Traffic Police, Special Branch, IGIA Police, Railway & Metro Police, etc.

ii. REFRESHER COURSES:

Even while the frequency of refresher courses cannot be generally defined, it is desirable that during the period of posting, every police personnel shall be required to undergo at least a 7-day refresher training course of a designed format in a calendar year.

Seven-day Refresher Course for Constables has also been devised and enclosed as Annexure-A. This should be uniformly followed in all the districts under the close supervision of the DCP/Addl. DCP-I of the district. The districts/units may also devise refresher courses relevant for the police officials for the duration which are considered appropriate.

iii. BASIC INVESTIGATION COURSE:

In order to upgrade and improve investigative skills of the IOs i.e. Head Constables, ASIs and SIs; each district shall conduct basic investigation course and impart training to such officers posted in the districts who due to their limited experience of investigation or lack of confidence hesitate from investigating cases or those who have the potential to investigate but could not avail the opportunity of investigating cases. Such training shall also be imparted to those who, due to a prolonged spell of posting in other units, are out of touch with or are not updated with the requirement of professional investigation etc.

The investigation course shall be for duration of two weeks of which one week training may be online and at least one week training can be offline. In online training the IOs will be briefed and educated about the commonly used and applied sections of Law in day to day Police functioning with latest amendments in law and Standing Orders related to investigations. In offline training the IOs should be made to write down case diaries, memos such as seizure memos, disclosure memos, house search memos, preparation of unscaled site plan and giving marginal notes thereon, inspection of scene of crime, kalandaras, statement u/s 161 Cr.P.C., proper drafting of charge sheets etc on their own, under the guidance and supervision of the faculty based on simulated crimes. Lifting, packing, preserving and forwarding of various physical, biological and other exhibits from the scene of crime shall also be taught.

4. LOCATION OF SUBSIDIARY TRAINING UNIT:

It should preferably be located centrally within the district/unit. The availability of appropriate training hall with related infrastructure is also an important criterion for deciding the location of the Subsidiary Training Unit. The training hall should have appropriate lay out design and ambience. Acoustics should be kept in mind to reduce distractions and aid concentration. The hall should have adequate lighting and furniture for about 40-50 participants. It should have enough space between the seating rows.

5. EQUIPMENT AND FURNITURE:

Keeping pace with time and to promote e-learning, training halls at all STUs should have the following:-

- He will also liaise with the concerned faculty in advance and make alternate arrangement in case any faculty is not available.
- He will maintain proper discipline and punctuality while conducting the courses.

9. CONTROL AND MONITORING:

There should be a weekly visit to STU by a GO of the concerned district or unit on a rotation basis to oversee the quality of training being imparted. He will record his observations in an 'Inspection Register' kept with the STU. The DCP or the Addl. DCP of the district/unit shall take keen interest in organising regular training programmes.

10. EVALUATION:

Evaluation of the trainees is an intrinsic part of a training course. Therefore, after conclusion of each training course whether it is an induction course, refresher course or basic investigation course evaluation in the form of some test or examination is required to be conducted. For this purpose a MCQ type paper based on a case study/scenario carrying 100 marks shall be prepared from all the topics or modules with 50% passing out marks. Entry regarding the courses attended shall be made in the service book of the individual police officer without fail and the result or the mark-sheet of each individual trainee shall be kept in his Service Book or Fauzi Missal.

At the end of the lecture by a guest faculty, feedback/evaluation upon the lectures delivered by the faculty should also be done. The same will be analyzed by the Training Officer and put up regularly to the DCP concerned. A copy of the Performa is annexed as Annexure - B.
